THE NEW WHISKEY LAW.—There is weeping and gnashing of teeth among the whiskey rings, and the fraudulent bondholders refuse to be comforted. A legislative bombshell, in the shape of the new Warehouse law, has fallen in their midst and scattered the wads all their ingeniously contrived plans of defrauding the revenue. This Whiskey law will affect capital to the extent of one hundred millions of dollars, and will inflict incalculable injury on the myriad cliques that combine against the revenues of the government. Already the whiskey interest is up in arms and fulminates threats and remonstrances in many an indignation meeting. The manufactured article is kept in the Western warehouses, and the convenient transfer-business is suspended until the legal tax is paid. This law will remove the necessity of resorting to violent and obnoxious measures to punish frauds on the revenue. It will enable the officers of the government to distinguish between those who obey the law and the real transgressors. It will increase the revenue accruing to the national Treasury from this source, and in breaking up the whiskey rings it will benefit legitimate dealers to a large extent. A nitro-glycerine explosion could scarcely produce more dismay than the new Whiskey law has done among the sharp practitioners of the whiskey interest. —N. Y. Herald.

HOW THE PARSON GOT EXCITED.—A few years since, near the city of N., lived a parson, who was excitable and near sighted. One day he had been in the city, with his horse, and among his purchases was a barrel of flour, the head of which was partially out.

On the way home, the old man was overtaken and passed by a young man, driving a fast horse, and putting on many airs. Now, the parson's horse was usually a quiet, steady going animal enough, but he couldn't stand that sort of thing; so he started after him of the fast order, in good earnest.

The jolting of the wagon at length jarred the head completely off the barrel, and the strong wind that was blowing directly after the parson, blew the flour all over him and his horse. A last the fast young man was left, and the village reached; but the speed of his horse was not checked.

In driving through a street to reach his home, he came in contact with one of his dogs, who was naturally surprised to see his master driving at such a pace, and signalled him to stop.

"Why, parson P., said he, 'what on earth is the matter? You seem greatly excited.'"

"Excited!" yelled the old man, "excited!" who wouldn't be excited? at a snow storm in July!"

WHAT'S IN A NUMBER?—The nineteenth century still continues to be the most enlightened of centuries; but as a noted Frenchman once said, it is only lighted by a chandelier, the expiration of which is not yet reached. Fifty-seven Parisian housekeepers have just presented a petition to the Prefect of the Seine, begging of him in his justice and kindness, the suppression of every number thirteen in Paris, and the substitution, in each case, of No. 11 bis. [In Paris the odd numbers are on one side of the street and even ones on the other, as they are arranged in Philadelphia, so that No. 13 is preceded by No. 11.] Those who heard of the petition laughed uproariously; but the other day, one of the laughers was present at a sale where some lots of ground were sold by auction.

The lots lay next to each other in the same street; the first was adjudged at 850 francs the metre, the next at 900 francs, and the third at 250 francs only. A reporter, some-what astonished, asked the reason of the difference of price. "Ah, monsieur!" was the answer, "the house built on the last lot of ground will bear the number thirteen, and every house afflicted with this sinister figure loses a fifth of its value." The demand of the petitioners, then, is well grounded.

THE UNCHANGEABLE LAND.—In the East things do not change. As Abraham pitches his tent in Bethel, so does an Arab Sheikh now set up his camp; as David built his palace on Mount Zion, so does a Turkish pasha now arrange his house. In every street may be seen the hairy children of Esau, squatting on the ground devouring a mess of lentils like that for which the rough hunter sold his birthright. Along every road plod the sons of Rechab, whose fathers, thousands of years ago bound themselves and theirs to drink no wine, plant no tree, enter within no door, and at every kham are young men around the pan of parched corn dipping their morsel into the dish.

Job's plow is still used, and the seed is still trodden into the ground by asses and camels. Olives are shaken from the bough as directed by Isaiah, and the grafting of trees is unchanging since the days of Saul. The Syrian house is still, as formerly, only a stone tent, as a temple was but a marble tent. What is seen now in Bethany may be taken as the exact house of Lazarus, where Mary listened and Martha toiled, or as the house of Simon the leper, where the box of precious ointment was broken, and whence Judas set out to betray his master.

A SEARCHING QUESTION.—The action of the Northern States in rejecting negro suffrage within their own limits has supplied the Southern whites with an argument which is very hard to answer. They no longer discuss negro suffrage in its ethnological, social or political aspects, but they simply plump the inquiry at us—"Why do you seek to force the negro vote upon us?" This is now the burden of addresses uttered by conservative conventions and public meetings throughout the South. Every mail brings to us the same interrogatory in substance, clothed in different forms by different minds, but all driving home this argument ad hominem, with irresistible power. We do not see how we can be answered consistently with Christianity morality, and common justice. —New York Journal of Commerce.
